Ken is emotionally and psychologically stuck; his father is sick, his job may be a dead end, his family is no help, and he's waiting for a lake to freeze. But at least he's got his sense of irony, and compelling insight into the things that fuel each decision he fails to make. And he knows that if he can just go ice fishing, everything might be okay.

Hunger Warrior Theatre presents the World Premiere of Between the Water and the Air, written and directed by Andrew Hungerford. This new drama explores what it means to be caught between youth and adulthood, between family and self in our modern, changing world. Against a backdrop of suburban Detroit, Michigan, we trace Ken's story with humor and compassion as he struggles to overcome the past in the search for what it means to move on.

Hunger Warrior Theatre is a company of young designers, actors, musicians, and writers from across the United States, committed to keeping theatre essential. With training from the University of Cincinnati College-Conservatory of Music as a common ground, these fresh graduates (and soon to be graduates) have banded together to break new ground with a collective voice. The 2005 Fringe marks their first fully realized production.
